Training Description:

This one-day training is designed to share current knowledge and information about opiate misuse and related problems, as well as solutions for intervention and care. Information about the cycle of physical dependence and withdrawal, signs of problematic use, and stages of change is provided. Furthermore, participants will learn about screening and assessment tools, case examples, and options for management, intervention, prevention, and outreach.

Training Objectives:

⇒ To provide general information about opiates and misuse, intervention and aftercare approaches to substance abuse and dependence, and related issues of special relevance to First Nations, Inuit, and Métis populations in Ontario.

Who Should Attend?

Aboriginal mental health and addiction workers who provide services to Aboriginal children and youth with mental health and/or addiction issues.

Facilitator:

Dr. Jonathan Bertram, MD - Centre for Addiction and Mental Health (CAMH)
