In many ways and positions, Bobby, also well known as “Buddy Knox” was an active community member...he spent a good part of his life out on the land, worked for many years at the hospital, coached many of the early years in minor hockey, and was a “strong leader” by dedicating 40 plus years at the community and regional governance tables.

Along with other great leaders like Andy Rickard, Bobby was a strong protector and advocate for our Treaty Rights. As a true brave Warrior standing tall beside other leaders from the Mushkegowuk First Nations, Bobby understood, spoke strongly and protected what was agreed to in the Treaty 9 Agreement.
